A North West farmer has been shot dead in the house he has lived in since birth, Beeld reported on Thursday.

A neighbour found Wessel Badenhorst, 55, on the kitchen floor of his Delareyville home with a bullet wound to the chest at around 7am on Wednesday.

His killers broke down a door to gain entry to the house, according to police. Farm workers alerted the neighbour when Badenhorst did not arrive for work.

Badenhorst's Isuzu bakkie was the only thing missing.
