Four men were arrested for robbing a business in Sandhurst in Johannesburg, Gauteng police said on Sunday.

Inspector Moses Maphakela said the four men allegedly broke into the Super Group company offices on the corner of Katherine street and Rivonia road around 3.30pm on Saturday.

Two of the men arrested were believed to be security guards employed by the company, including one who had recently started.

The four men, aged 24, 28, 29 and 37, allegedly loaded stolen computers into a vehicle on the premises.

Bramley police received information from the 10111 call centre and responded.

The four men were caught on the scene and police recovered the vehicle into which they were loading the computers.

They would appear before the Wynberg Magistrate's Court soon on charges of house breaking and theft on a business property, Maphakela said.
